Chicago, July 7.—Prices marched up the hill today and then marched down again. In wheat a fair business was transacted. The opening was about 1-4c higher than yesterday's closing, driven down and declined steadily until 1-1c for September delivery, then 1-8c higher for July, 1-6c for September, quite bullish signs of corn and erfs a certain indifference for or against prices. In so far as the present is concerned, the outlook is quite good and the extreme nervousness is no longer due to apprehension of any existing facts. The current news of the market is quite true and isolated reports of an extreme character should not be construed too literally, but with a proper regard for exaggeration.

The publication of the Houston Post covers a large territory and detailed reports give the idea that a rate as early as the 1st instant was probably any damage from drought. The market, at present, will be out on the 10th instant, when we have before stated, is a waiting one, and until some development, is purely speculative, affording only a small margin of fluctuation.
